Baxter and Gillespie is one of Scotland's leading painting contractors.

Formed in 1969 by John Baxter and Donald A. Gillespie, the business has established a reputation for high standards of workmanship and customer service.

The next generation, Paul Baxter and Donnie Gillespie, took over the running of the company in 1992 and strengthened the business by adding a new director, Paul Doyle. Each director has over 30 years' experience in the trade.

Baxter & Gillespie has roots firmly in the Glasgow area. From small offices, the company moved to spacious and modern premises in 1993. This Auld Street base is a convenient central location which allows the firm to service contracts throughout the country, a validation of its "Covering Scotland" motto.

The company employs highly-motivated painters and decorators and Ames tapers, all of whom carry CSCS cards. Baxter & Gillespie's apprenticeships offer opportunities to young tradespeople, a regular intake that helps invigorate the workforce.

Site work is overseen by SMSTS supervisors, master tradesmen committed to furthering the Baxter & Gillespie brand. Many of the supervisors have up to 15 years' experience with the company, a strong endorsement of its standing within the industry and appreciation of good working conditions.

The painters and decorators are supported by an eight-strong administration team in Auld Street.

Throughout all departments, continuous staff development enhances skills and improves the service to clients.

Stringent safety measures

Baxter & Gillespie provides internal and external painting and decorating, Ames taping and plastering, a comprehensive service for industry, commerce, education and government agencies.

Health and safety is paramount and the firm's commitment to this important aspect of the construction process has won accolades and awards for on-site management. All supervisors and many operatives have IPAF and PASMA certificates. The company uses materials and work practices which help to safeguard the environment.

Baxter & Gillespie's pedigree has earned recognition from leading construction companies, such as Bovis, Carillion, Taylor Woodrow, Balfour Beatty, Sir Robert McAlpine and Morgan Ashurst.

In addition to gaining Achilles accreditation and preferred supplier status, the company's successes have led to business partnerships and inclusion on tendering lists, offering new opportunities to broaden its project coverage.

The company's portfolio includes a wide range of prestige developments: from The Radisson, Glasgow Harbour; the BBC at Pacific Quay, Stobhill Hospital, 200 Broomielaw and Hampden's BT Stand in Glasgow to the Royal Bank of Scotland Computer Centre and the Industrial Tribunals office in Edinburgh. Projects at Cameron House Hotel, Portree High School, RAF Lossiemouth and RAF Kinloss underline the company's ability and desire to work throughout Scotland.

In 2009, its 40th year, Baxter & Gillespie expanded by opening a second office in Newcastle-upon-Tyne. This exciting initiative takes the company's expertise to a new market and offers scope for additional growth.

Baxter & Gillespie offers a professional and quality service for major painting and decorating contracts. Prospective clients can be assured of a prompt and thorough response to all quotation requests. Baxter & Gillespie is committed to providing customer satisfaction at every stage of its contracts.
